Subject: TIME SENSITIVE: Comment for today's livestreamed BOR meeting

Hello,

I am Regents Professor of History at the University of Montana Missoula and I have been watching the livestreamed meeting, which only came to my attention this morning. I have a time-sensitive question/comment for the group related to pending/passed legislation and how it might affect our students. I called OCHE and was told there was a comment deadline yesterday at 5 p.m. Here are my comments in writing:

I appreciate the BOR's commitment to student well-being and the decision to address the complicated matter of compliance with pending legislation at the state level, recent Executive Orders aimed at higher education, and the Dear Colleague letter in today's meeting. I have concerns that this information is not readily available to faculty, staff, and students. In the past few weeks, multiple students, faculty, and staff on my campus have approached me with concerns. It is apparent that there is a great deal of confusion and consternation on campus about what compliance will entail. Some information circulating among students is almost certainly inaccurate, such as the belief that syllabi cannot use the phrase "climate change." Some is perhaps accurate, but misinformed as to the rationale, such as changes in bathroom signage. And still more seems to be coming either from individual faculty members or particular chairs, such as directives banning faculty from using their students' preferred pronouns.

I am concerned that the lack of real information and the circulation of false information is undermining faculty morale and student welfare.

Best,
Anya
